

Ahmad S. Corbitt is director of the New York Office of Public and International Affairs of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He and his colleagues regularly represent the Church at United Nations and other international activities and events, and in meetings with U.N. diplomats and other foreign dignitaries. He has similar responsibilities with national, regional and local events and dignitaries. As a church spokesperson, Brother Corbitt also interacts with the media on behalf of the Church. Previously, Brother Corbitt was Executive Director of Corporate Communications and Associate General Counsel at Corporation Service Company (C.S.C.), a Delaware-based registered agent representing Fortune 500 companies and top national law firms. He managed the company's communications, marketing and strategic relationships. He also furnished legal counsel to the corporation and its subsidiaries. He provided law firm and law department customers continuing legal education lectures, business lectures and articles on a variety of subjects, including legislative policy, securities laws, Sarbanes-Oxley compliance, white collar crime, special purpose entities and intellectual property.

Prior to joining C.S.C., Brother Corbitt was vice president and general counsel at Coltrin & Associates, Inc., a public relations firm with offices in the U.S., Europe and Asia. He handled communications for various marquis accounts, including Burger King, the Salt Lake Winter Olympics of 2002, Chapters (of Canada), Palm and InVision Technologies (manufacturer of baggage screening equipment for U.S. airports). As a spokesperson for the Salt Lake Olympic Committee, he provided numerous strategic interviews and statements for international, national and regional media on the Olympic Torch Relay. As general counsel of Coltrin & Associates, Brother Corbitt oversaw all legal matters involving the company in the U.S. and abroad.

Previously, Brother Corbitt was a successful trial and appellate lawyer. He honorably completed a four-year appointment by the New Jersey Supreme Court as a member of the New Jersey (District IV) Ethics Committee, which oversees ethics complaints against lawyers. He is admitted to the bars of New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York. Brother Corbitt serves as the Church's representative on the Board of the National Interfaith Cable Coalition, and as a member of the Board of Directors of the National Bible Association. He is a member of the President's Advancement Council at Brigham Young University-Idaho, and the National Advisory Councils of the Marriott School of Management at Brigham Young University and Southern Virginia University. He is a past president of the Fair Housing Council of Southern New Jersey, and past chairman of various dispute resolution committees in South Jersey. He is a member of the Public Relations Society of America.
