The Student Activities Program

The BYU–Idaho Student Activities Program invites individuals to experience the power of acting for themselves through involvement in student-led programs and events. Students are responsible for organizing and administering every aspect of the day-to-day operations of the program.

Each semester there are literally thousands of opportunities to get involved in Service, Talent, Wellness, Sports, Outdoor, and Social events! As students take action and become involved they experience what Elder Henry B. Eyring called “leadership training of the broadest and most exciting kind”.

Students can choose to be involved in the Student Activities Program at every level. They can choose to be spectators and attend activities like sporting events or dances. They can decide to be an active participant by doing something like performing in a show or going on a rock climbing trip. Or, if they desire a more active role students can be a coach, teach a workshop, or take responsibility for organizing an event like a blood drive. These are just a few of the hundreds of ways students can be involved. As they participate, gain experience and skills and experience there are additional opportunities to volunteer their time in a variety of leadership roles. Here, students can organize, lead, and train other students. Through this unique program of participation students develop personal and spiritual qualities that prepare them for life.

Student leaders are given a framework and they counsel with advisors but they act for themselves. They take the lead in organizing events like Guitars Unplugged and ongoing programs like Adopt a Grandparent or various sports leagues. All BYU–Idaho students are invited to propose, seek approval, and create new programs and events in an effort to provide a wide range of activities that appeal to the diverse interests of all students on campus.

Get more out of your educational experience at BYU–Idaho and become involved in the Student Activities Program. To learn more, visit the web site at www.byui.edu/activities or call 208-496-7300.