The Dance Area offers a Bachelor of Arts degree in Dance. This degree is designed to prepare students to find successful career opportunities as a dance professional. During their studies students will acquire the knowledge and experience necessary to become a highly qualified and sound dance educator. The Dance Area also offers a minor degree in dance.

Central Aims

1. Provide opportunities for the student to develop spiritually, artistically, intellectually and physically. This is accomplished through our desire to emphasize gospel principles, personal integrity, individual enrichment and sensitivity to multiple perspectives.
2. Graduates in dance will have a versatile, but quality foundational experience to begin a career in dance as a dance educator.
3. Students will learn through dance that they can become better individuals by living the restored gospel of Jesus Christ, enhancing their roles as creative and artistic individuals, church members, citizens and parents.
4. Our goal is to challenge students to become individual thinkers, serve the community and make artistic efforts that reflect a richly complex and diverse global perspective.

Objectives

- This four year degree in dance guides students in finding success and happiness in contributing to the dance field.
- BYU-Idaho’s integrated degree program in dance offers a unique learning experience as students major in dance and minor in a suggested field of study such as business, health science, communication, music, etc. This enables them to become prime candidates for desirable jobs in the dance field that would be fulfilling, meet their financial needs, and allow them to contribute to their family and community.
- The Dance Faculty is committed to helping students seek career opportunities in the dance field through a four year degree program that demands both versatility and depth.
- The degree encourages students to reevaluate the purpose of beauty and how it can be expressed using dance as a medium of artistic communication to reach people of varied backgrounds.
- Throughout their studies students will experience the value in blessing others’ lives through a teaching and/or performance setting.
- Through our performance tours, students have the opportunity to reach out to communities within our region, across the nation, and even the world.
- We recognize the value and necessity to prepare students to become knowledgeable and skilled dance educators with the ability to collaborate across disciplines within the dance field.

Requirements:
The integrated Baccalaureate degree in dance at BYU-Idaho allows a student to choose a minor or two clusters in a suggested field of study. The suggested fields of study are: Accounting, Business, Communications, Exercise Science, Health Science, Music, or Recreational Leadership.

Dance Major Status:
The Dance Area has an open enrollment policy for freshmen and transfer students interested in pursuing a degree in dance. These students are considered “Prospective Dance Majors”.

Admission as a Dance Major and clearance for subsequent dance courses is contingent upon completion of the following courses and an audition. One or more of these courses may be taken the same semester as the audition.

- Dance 103 (Introduction to Dance Major and Professions)
- Dance 240 (Dance Tech 1)
- Dance 290 (Ballet Tech 1)
- or one of the following
  - Dance 270 (World Dance Intermediate)
  - Dance 271 (Clog Dance Technique 1)
  - Dance 284 (Ballroom Tech 1)

Auditions
An audition is required to participate in Dance Alliance or Collegiate Dancers.

All audition dates and times are posted online at www.byui.edu/dance.

(Fall, Winter, Spring)

DANCE 390R Ballet Technique 2 (2.0:0:4)
Prerequisite: Dance 290, Dance majors only.
This course explores ballet through an understanding of kinesthetic movement principles.
(Fall, Winter, Spring)

DANCE 402 History of Dance (3.0:3:0)
This course is a survey of dance history focusing specifically on those forms that have lead to contemporary performance, social and competitive forms of dance from western traditions. Students examine the role of movement, dance and the arts in a philosophical and historical context.
(Fall, Winter, Spring)

DANCE 403 Senior Capstone Project (1.0:1:0)
An in depth, original research project that integrates dance and related field of interest such as teaching, research, choreography, production, or performance. This will require a written document, oral presentation, and visual production. Preparation for this course will begin in the Introduction to Dance Major and Professions and Dance Seminar classes in order to help them determine a topic of research.
(Fall, Winter, Spring)

DANCE 440R Modern Dance Technique 4 (2.0:0:5)
Prerequisite: DANCE 240 or consent of instructor
This course will explore modern dance using a variety of methods of movement awareness in order to promote optimal movement efficiency and potential. Simple and complex movement patterns and rhythms will be explored through movement combinations, choreography and some improvisation. Alignment and conditioning of the body will be emphasized. Methods of dance/body therapies will be incorporated. Trends and current events of modern dance will be covered in the form of a group project.
(Fall, Winter, Spring)

DANCE 442 Choreographic Explorations (3.0:0:4)
Prerequisite: DANCE 242
This course encompasses the study, exploration, implementation, and examination of the dance making process at an advanced level of inquiry, creative thinking, and critical analysis in order to more articulately develop an understanding of movement as an expressive art form. It is also an opportunity for students to produce a final choreographic project that will incorporate the skills, knowledge, and experience acquired throughout their dance studies which will be presented in a live performance setting.
(Fall, Spring)
DANCE 458R Teaching Techniques of Social Dance, Advanced  (2.0:2:0)

Fee: $25.00
Prerequisite: Audition. Any "dance technique" class 200 level or higher.
Collegiate Dancers' promotes recreational dancing, teaching, and performance. This outreach group will consist of 40 dancers dedicated to sharing several styles of dance. Representing BYU-Idaho, the group will perform for community schools and local organizations in addition to campus events. Our hope is that the students will receive a quality experience that will allow them to share dance in their communities as well as prepare for other performing opportunities. These students will be invited to strengthen their testimonies of the restored gospel in addition to developing their skill, performance, teaching, and team work abilities.
(Fall, Winter, Spring)

DANCE 495 Dance Kinesiology 2  (3.0:3:0)
Prerequisite: Dance 295
Introduction to human anatomy and kinesiology consisting of the study of human movement specific to dance, with emphasis on the anatomical principles and the laws of physics as they apply to dance technique and performance from the hip to the head. Structural and neuromuscular analysis including individual analysis of alignment, muscular imbalances, body types, conditioning needs, injury prevention, nutrition, somatics and movement behavior.
(Winter)

DANCE 496 Somatics  (2.0:2:0)
Prerequisite: DANCE 240 and DANCE 295. Dance majors only.
A course that provides the dancer the opportunity to learn about neuromuscular reeducation of the body as it pertains to dance education in order to promote optimal, healthy movement efficiency.
(Winter)

DANCE 498R Internship  (1.0-3.0:0:0)
Prerequisite: Consent of Instructor
The purpose of the internship is to provide “real world” experience linked with information and learning from courses taken at the university. The internship should aid the student in decisions about future careers in the dance world.
(Fall, Winter, Spring)
